Roses Most Prolific Flower For Bouquets

Gainesville, Fla.—Did you know a rose bush can give you more blooms for cutting than any other flowering shrub.

Each year plants produce from five to seven cycles of "flushes" of bloom—of one to two weeks' duration—and a few flowers between cycles.

But, according to S. E. McFadden, assistant horticulturist with the state's Agricultural Experiment Stations, roses are high maintenance plants here in Florida.

He says that plentiful supplies of high quality roses can be obtained only when plants are cared for properly and allowed to reach mature size.

"They need growing over a long blooming period," says McFadden, "as well as weekly applications of fungicide to control the leaf disease blackspot."

But for those who like to spend time in their garden each week as a matter of course, growing roses can be a rewarding hobby.

The Stations ornamental horticulturist said that except for growing and pest control differences, cultural practices for growing roses in Florida are similar to those for growing other flowering shrubs.

"While most features of Florida rose culture are the same as in other parts of the country, there are some differences," McFadden explains.

For example, plants grow larger here and therefore need more space than in colder climates. "Winter protection practices such as deep planting or covering tops, are not necessary," he explained.

Here, as elsewhere, success with your rose bushes depends upon the selection of varieties and rootstock which are suited to local conditions.

"Everblooming varieties grafted on Rosa fortuniana rootstock are recommended, but everblooming varieties with other kinds of root systems can be grown successfully, McFadden pointed out.

A message from the Treasury of a free people

How to speak out for freedom today

Free men have never gone in much for silence. Even before the first thirteen States became United States, men were speaking for freedom loud and clear.

Today Americans speak out for freedom many ways—in Congress, in local government, in neighborhood activities. Some speak out for freedom in other languages, in other lands. And millions of Americans speak out for freedom every time they buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Every Savings Bond you buy is an investment in freedom. While you're saving money for your own family's future, you're helping Uncle Sam tend to the business of keeping men free today.

Perhaps you don't speak out for freedom in the same tone of voice when you buy a Bond as Patrick Henry did in his famous speech. But you speak every bit as surely. And every bit as proudly.

Why not speak out for freedom now? Buy Bonds at the bank or on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Keep freedom in your future with

ANGUS SIMS

New Mission Opened North Canal Point

The Way The Truth and The Life Chapel-Mission will formally begin services February 22 with a revival campaign through March 5.

The Rev. and Mrs. Harold M. Hugs of Rushville, Ohio will be the evangelists for the campaign. The Way The Truth and The Life Chapel-Mission is located one and one half miles north of Canal Point on U. S. Highway 441 in the building owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McCall and was formerly occupied by Underwood's Snack Bar.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herman Garber of Waynesburg, Penna., feeling the call of God to home mission work in this area, have rented the aforementioned building which is now furnished and ready for chapel services.

The Garbers have previously been active in organizational and administrative work of the church and have engaged in home missionary endeavor in South Western Penna.

Mr. Garber was active in Rescue Mission work in its various phases at Stubenville, Ohio.

The purpose of the chapel-mission endeavor is to promote a spiritual awakening among the unchurched in this area and to press for a return to the teaching of the Bible as the criterion of all life, even in this day. The work is interdenominational.

The chapel will be open for prayer meeting each evening at 7:30 beginning February 15.

"Today, none of us can remain aloof on the sidelines."

"Today, above all, is a time for all Americans to rededicate themselves to the spirit that animated the Minutemen of Concord—who serve as a symbol of the Savings Bond program. For today, as at the founding of our nation, it is freedom which is again at stake. Not all of us are called upon to fight in the jungles of Vietnam, but while our men are there, in the front line of a distant land, none of us can remain aloof on the sidelines. We must all do our share—in every way we can—to support our men in Vietnam. One sure way is open to all Americans through the Savings Bond program."
